GRADUATION OF DEAF AND BLIND

Graduation exercises for the five students of the State School for the Deaf and Blind, who have finished the prescribed work were held in the gymnasium of the institution last evening.

Despite their physical defects, the graduates took as active a part in their exercises as did the boys and girls of the high school or Academy. Lillian Soderberg, a graduate of the deaf department, recited her essay on "The Lady of the Lake" with the enunciation of a finished speaker and surpassed the efforts of many who are able to hear their own words and sentences. The story of "The Vision of Sir Launfal" was given in the same excellent manner by Sarah Getz, a blind girl.

To the deaf, occupying the platform and auditorium, the words of the speakers were translated by Superintendent F. M. Driggs and the expressions upon the faces of the deaf showed plainly that the fine points of the speakers impressed them even more than those in the audience in possession of all faculties.

Rev. H. D. Zimmerman of the First Baptist church opened the exercises with a prayer. Besides the essays of the graduates, James Jacobs, a blind boy, played solos upon his violin in an exquisite manner and sang in good voice. Lula McDonald, a blind student, played his accompaniments. The execution of the two was well demonstrated in the rendition of "Marquette's Waltz" from Faust in which the alto part is difficult to professional performers.

A. L. Scoville delivered the address to the graduates. He said that it was in his restrictions that man arose to his best work. We see and hear too much to become great, he said. He believed that the teaching of the future will be by feeling and by influencing the students at a time when they have not become hardened to impressions.

Miss Maud May Babcock, president of the board of trustees, presented the diplomas. In appreciation of excellent work done during the season, the five members of the basketball team were presented with sweaters.

NINETY DAYS IN JAIL FOR KRIKA

Ninety days in jail was the sentence imposed this morning upon Edward Krika, after Judge Reeder had found him guilty of the charge of disturbing the peace by following two girls on Twenty-fifth street and following them until they appealed to Richard O'Neill, the contractor, for protection.

Krika pleaded not guilty and related a long story on the witness stand in which he said he was in that neighborhood to meet a girl named Lizzie. The girl, he said, was to get off a Twenty-fifth street car at Orchard avenue, and he was to walk with her to her home on Twenty-sixth street, opposite Orchard avenue. He could give no satisfactory explanation for his actions in leaving his direct path to follow behind the girls on Jefferson avenue when they went into the home of Mr. O'Neill.

Walter Everett, charged with drunkenness, pleaded guilty and said that his spree had been the first in four years, when he had taken a "cure." The police stated that he had been begging for money although he had some in his pocket. Evidently knowing his falling when drunk, Everett asked if he was not also trying to sell his watch. He appeared relieved when he was told that his suspicions were correct.

The judge gave him a suspended sentence.

Charles Ray, the man who went to sleep in the Intermountain telephone building and permitted his shoes to be stolen, was given his second suspended sentence while Flynn, the man found guilty of taking the shoes, was given a sentence of 15 days.

Mayme Williams, the negress, charged with vagrancy, was sentenced to 60 days. It was alleged that the woman took $5 from Gus Cordis after approaching him on Wall avenue several days ago.

According to a telegraphic dispatch received at the Standard, the national board of baseball arbitration today allowed the claim of Smith against Ogden. Neither Knight nor the directors of the Ogden club are acquainted with such a player or remember a man with that name playing under Ogden contracts.

FAMILY QUARREL IN CITY COURT

After coming to a partial settlement out of court, Edward Hart this morning in Judge Reeder's court changed his plea from not guilty to guilty of the charge of disturbing the peace of H. W. Manning and asked for the leniency of the court.

Mr. Manning was willing that the court grant leniency to Hart, but Mrs. Manning objected. She said that any man who had treated his wife as Hart had treated his, and who had disturbed the peace of the neighbors should not receive leniency.

According to Mrs. Manning's testimony, the trouble originated after Mrs. Hart had gone to the Manning home, when Hart had arrived at his home in an alleged condition.

Hart declared that outside of a quarrel now and then, he and his wife lived on good terms and the peace of their homes would be better if it were not for the neighbors. He declared he will move.

Judge Reeder exacted promises from Hart and ordered a suspended sentence of six months.

After court had adjourned, the judge learned that Mrs. Manning is the mother-in-law of Hart.

DESPENDENT HE ENDS LIFE WITH GUN

While in a fit of despondency, brought about by nervous trouble and brooding, Robert McChesney, aged 47 years, a striking machinist, blew out his brains with a 38 calibre revolver while at his wife's bedside in their home on West Seventeenth street, at 4 o'clock this morning. The shot he fired penetrated the right temple and extended through the head coming out above the left ear.

In response to a call, Sergeant Peterson, Detective Tom Burke and Patrolman Blackburn visited the scene with Dr. E. P. Mills. They found the man dead, with his wife and children frantic with grief. The body was taken to a local undertaking establishment.

Besides his wife, six children at home survive him, three by a former marriage and three by his second wife.

For some time the wife states her husband had been acting strangely and showed signs of melancholia. While employed at the shops before the strike he had purchased a lot on West Seventeenth street and between the jobs that he has secured since the strike, had built a comfortable concrete house upon the lot. The family was about ready to move into the new home when the terrible deed was committed.

Mr. McChesney was a cousin of Mr. Littlejohn. Mrs. McChesney has been ill for some time and was bedfast at the time of the shooting though she managed to crawl out of bed in the room filled with smoke and call the other children to her aid, who immediately notified Mrs. Frey.

Mr. McChesney's resolved to end it all was the culmination of a series of misfortunes. His first wife died after a long period of sickness. Then he remarried and moved to Ogden where he obtained employment in the Southern Pacific shops as a machinist in 1908. Then came the strike and his second wife's illness. He met with repeated disappointments over the prospects of the strike being won. Then he had water troubles to contend with in connection with his irrigation ditch. Five hogs he had been fattening were poisoned. Three weeks ago he fell and fractured an ankle. His wife's extreme illness had a most depressing effect and he became completely discouraged and he remarked that life was not worth while.

He was on picket duty for the strikers at regular intervals, having been at that task last night. He ended his life on returning home from picket duty.

Robert B. McChesney was born in Lewis county, Missouri, in 1866. He moved to Burlington, Ia., in his early boyhood and in 1895 married Minnie Welch. Three children by this marriage survive and they are Ruth, 16 years, Lola 15 years, and Robert, 9 years. On December 2, 1910, he married Mrs. Alice Smith, whose three young children, by a former marriage, and all under 17 years, are now with their mother.

The funeral services will be held at the Methodist church on Saturday. Strikers indignant.

"Editor Standard: We the committee appointed to investigate this affair would be pleased to have you correct a malicious statement made by the Morning Examiner of this date in regard to the suicide of the late Robert McChesney, a striking machinist, who the paper stated was in a starving condition and living in a hovel and brooding over a lost position that merely allowed him to exist while working. He never held a position as foreman of Southern Pacific company at Ogden."

"A committee of strikers waited on Mrs. McChesney this morning to ascertain the facts. She feels very indignant over the article that appeared in this morning's paper and says she will demand a correction."

OGDEN WOMAN REGAINS HER JEWELS

An Ogden woman who lost $3,000 in jewels and then had the stolen articles returned to her, is the subject of a long story, accompanied by a picture, in the Los Angeles Tribune of last Saturday, from which the following is an extract:

"Mrs. Nellie C. Henderson of Klondike, whose jewels valued at $3,000, stolen from her room in the San Nuy's hotel, were returned by parcel post yesterday, says she hopes the penitent thief will never be detected."

"Three weeks ago yesterday the valuables were taken from her trunk. Seven detectives vainly chased clues. Yesterday a box came to her by parcel post containing all the jewels."

"With shining eyes, flushed cheeks and exclaiming with delight, Mrs. Henderson pressed to her lips a superb cameo cut in Holland representing Omphale, the mythological queen of love, for whom Hercules is reported to have sold himself as a slave to her. This cameo has been in Mrs. Henderson's family's possession 140 years. It has been priced at $500. Other articles stolen were four diamond rings, a gold mesh bag, a gold vanity case, two chains, an elegant vanity case, a locket and other bits of the goldsmith's art."

"I believe the one who took my jewels repented and sent them back with a contrite heart. I hope he may never be detected," said Mrs. Henderson. "I regretted the loss of the cameo most. It is old and unique."

"The parcel was postmarked San Francisco and was addressed simply 'Mrs. Henderson, Van Nuy's hotel.' A detective who has been working on the case said he believed the thief had found the disposal of the jewels in San Francisco very difficult owing to the descriptions of it and the notice of the theft sent out and rather than lose the lot, the thief had sent them back to the owner."

Another said he thought the thief an amateur who had repented."

On their way to Baltimore, to attend the annual convention of the Advertising Clubs of America, a delegation of Portland boosters stopped off in Ogden a short time this morning, aglow with the enthusiasm of their mission to the east and determined to accomplish the most possible good for the west. In the party were C. H. Moore, H. R. Hayek, C. R. Bostersmith and wife, Beryl Methot and Miss Mayo Methot, the latter designated as "A Portland Rosebud."

The party arrived in the city this morning and continued on east soon after the noon hour, joining the California delegation to the convention. The convention will be in session three days, beginning June 9. On Sunday, the advertisers will have the privilege of occupying the Baltimore pulpits and it is said that some preaching will be done. The Portland delegates say they will talk hard and strong for the west, and they consider that the west is embraced largely in the Intermountain region from Washington to Mexico and from Kansas to the coast. No orthodox religious sermons will be preached, but reforming and brotherly love, applied to the great work of developing the country, will be given.

"There was a time," said Mr. Hayek to a Standard man, "when, in our particular region of country, there were jealousies and petty bickerings between residents of sister towns. Portland people would not treat Seattle people kindly and Seattle folks hated a Portland man. But that time has passed and we now boost for every place in the Rockies. We have learned that what helps one locality is good for all the mountain region. We now are beginning to love each other and always have a boost for every little old place we know of."

"Commercial club organizations, publicity bureaus and advertising associations are bringing about a great reform in the manner of uniting the commercial and home interests of the people of the west and in most places there is no longer discord. We of Portland, now speak of Oregon when we boost, and when we get to Baltimore, we are going to speak of the West—every place embraced within the great empire of the west. To boost for the Intermountain country is one part of our mission. The other is to learn something of the advertising methods of the state old east. That country has been built on a firm foundation and there is no need to worry much about further development and yet the easterners are continually boosting for the east and we want to know how they do it. When we find it out, we are coming home to tell the folks all about it."

Mr. Hayek earnestly advocates that it is not the development of a particular city near the coast line that will most benefit the western empire of mountains and valleys, but the development of the natural facilities and resources of all the country, more particularly the rural districts.

The Oregonians were pleased with Ogden and expressed a desire to remain longer in the city. The party was dined at the Weber club and advised as to the greatness of this state.

INSPECT FOREST TIMBER
Provo, June 3.—Early this morning Forest Examiner D. F. Seery, Forest Supervisor W. I. Pack and Deputy Forest Supervisor J. Carl Allred left Provo in an automobile with Mr. Sutton of Minnesota for the head of the Provo and Duchesne rivers to inspect timber on the reserve. Mr. Sutton is representing large lumber interests. It is said the lumber will be purchased for railroad ties.

BOOSTERS STOP OFF TO SEE OGDEN

"She says she has not been in need of anything since the strike was called and was getting along nicely, having just completed a one and one-half story cement block cottage, and started to move in the same yesterday morning. And from what the committee saw, the cottage is good enough for anyone to live in. This proves plainly the article published is false and malicious."

"Mr. McChesney has had some trouble not connected with the strike, over which he had been brooding, one of which was with the Water Co. He owns five acres of land adjoining the home with a water right, showing plainly he was not in poverty as alleged by the Morning Examiner."

"Brother McChesney was a member of the Woodmen of the World, Eagles, I. O. O. F., Fraternal Union, and last, but not least, the Local Order of Machinists, No. 127 of this city, no member of which would allow him to be in the condition reported by the Examiner."

"The funeral services will be conducted from the First Methodist Episcopal church at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, June 7, at which all members of the federated crafts, comprising the shop federation are, with the many friends, invited to attend."

"The body of our late friend and brother is now lying in state at the Kirkendall Undertaking parlors where the remains may be viewed by all who wish up to the time of funeral."

(Signed)
"General Advisory Board, Shop Federation, by C. E. Owens, Secretary."

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 4.—Wheat sagged today because offerings were unusually free and demand only scattered. The relative weakness of cables tended to check buying. There were also predictions of further showers in Kansas. The opening varied from 1-8c lower to 1-4c higher. July started at 91 1/8 to 91 1-4 and declined to 90 3/4 @90 7-8c.

Corn proved responsive to moderate commission purchases, due to amnesia of receipts and to good cash inquiry. July, which opened unchanged to 1-8c lower at 53 1/2 to 58 5-8c, rose to 59 1-8c.

Liberal sales had a bearish effect on oats. July after starting unchanged to a sixteenth higher at 39 3-8@39 1/4 to 39 1/2c, descended to 39 1-8@39 1-4c.

Provisions appeared to sympathize with the bulge in corn and first sales ranged from 10c off to 2 1/2c advance, with September as follows:

Pork, $19.75.
Lard, $11.00 to $11.02 1/2.
Ribs, $11.25.

Wheat—Wall street depression carried prices much lower after a temporary rally resulting from bullish estimates on crop losses. The close was nervous with July 1-3c net lower at 89 3-4@87-8c.

Corn—The market afterward reacted.
